Young Sam-my Brown was a vol-un-ter,— Went off to France like a cav-a-lier,—
Young Sam-my Brown wrote an-oth-er note,— These pret-ty words to his sweet-heart wrote,—

Sam-my learned to say "oui oui," You for me, "Ma cher-iei"— He met some girls on the Rue Mont-martre,
Pa-ree girls they may be fine, You for mine, all the time; He mixed the en-velopes and he sent,

They made a dent in-to Sam-my's heart,— To his friends he penned a note, And this is what he wrote.—
This pret-ty note to his Yan-kee friend, She got the oth-er one in-stead, And this is what she read.—

Chorus.

They've got that oo-la-la-la, dream-y oo-la-la-la, In their won-der-ful eyes,

Those sweet Pa - ri - si - an eyes, — They tell such won - der - ful lies, — And ev - 'ry

Yan-kee Doo - dle will go off his noo - dle, With a joy - ous sur - prise, They're bound to

Chorus.

In San Do-ming-o, we are all glad to understand the ling-o

But I understood her dance, Chickoo-Chickoo-Chickoo. One day by "Jing-o-o" I held her hand.
